THE HOME OF MR. & MRS. D. R. DOIG - 547 Thirteenth Street

In addition to the collection of paintings, drawings, and sculpture which are catalogued herein, there are other objects of interest which are identified by cards giving data about them.

Georgian silver, for table use, much of it by the Hennell family, and early Georgian toy silver, which is very rare, form one collection.

Furniture of the eighteenth century and earlier, mostly English, and some china and glass, will be identified for those whose interest in antiques lies there.

Only those articles whose date is BEFORE 1830 are considered "Antique". It marks the end of the Georgian period, and is the date used by lawmakers to mark those things as officially antique and not subject to duty. The British Antique Dealers' Association, whose reputation is high and whose word is accepted, uses a stamp for articles being exported. You may see this stamp on some of the pieces of furniture.

THE HOME OF PROFESSOR & MRS. EDWARD PERRY - 342 Thirteenth Street

Emphasis has been placed on a careful selection of English, French, and Italian furniture from the seventeenth, eighteenth, and early nineteenth centuries. Old English china and silver and objects d'art illustrate the manners and customs of earlier generations, and show something of the love of beauty inherent in the lives of our forefathers.

This collection, the result of considerable study and search of antique, has been gathered from the United States, Canada, England, Sweden, Germany, Italy, France, China, and India. It is felt that things of beauty are not only a joy forever, but are of interest and value to our students of today in making known to them something of the heritage on which our own are built.

The oil paintings included in the collection are listed in the catalogue subjoined. The furniture, china, silver, and objects d'art are identified by cards giving their material, description, classification, and period.

Of particular interest is the cabinet desk of Sir Walter Scott, eighteenth century, mahogany, Chippendale; purchased by Lord Torphichen at the time of the dispersal of Scott's effects and home at No. 39 Castle Street, Edinburgh, in 1826. The desk was purchased from the person whose parents obtained it from the Torphichen family.

82. "Winter Wood-Cuts" 17/100 - a portfolio of 15 wood cuts.
Published in 1936.

The various other etchings, engravings, to be seen are commercially produced - that is, the artist who engraved the plate did not do the actual reproducing - or it is not known who did - therefore they do not come under the classification of "Original" works of art. The exception to the above is the collection of "BAXTER PRINTS".

BAXTER, George (1804 - 1865), English, unique in the world of picture printing, and whose skill in producing from a combination of copper plates and wood blocks, prints of delicacy and detail, was never equalled even by the printers who worked from his plates.
